It's not too early: Call now to schedule your child's back-to-school physical!

Have you had your child's eyes checked recently?

The best way to monitor your child's eye health, like finding out if your child needs glasses, is to schedule a vision screening. During these exams your eye doctor checks for disease and also assesses if your child's eyes are functioning properly. Below are some of the most common signs that a child may have vision problem:

- Rubbing eyes frequently or squinting a lot
- Eyes that flutter too quickly to the side or up and down
- Eyes that are misaligned or do not focus

Eye exams don't have to be stress-inducing for you and your child! Kids love to be involved and have a say. Focus on the positives of the visit, like looking forward to picking out glasses: what color or style would be the coolest?

August is National Immunization Awareness Month!

August is the ideal time to make sure everyone in your family is up-to-date with their shots before kids head back to school!

- Schedule a back-to-school check-up. Your doctor can help your family with a plan for recommended vaccinations (click here) and school entry immunization requirements (click here).
- While you're at the doctor's office and it's on your mind, make a plan to get your flu shot early.

For babies, the CDC recommends a strategy called "cocooning": vaccinating the adults who are around an infant most to protect the baby. Click here to learn more about how this strategy works.

Sincerely,
